One of our citizens was coming to town the other day when he remarked to several bystanders that something was "wrong" with the town and he couldn't figure out what it was. We presume it was the cleanliness which always gives a fellow inspiration and new life. The facts of the case are that Mayor S. J. Williams, assisted by working men and teams, have given the city a "new pin" appearance by hauling off all of the trash, rubbish and tin cans, which are now obsolete things of the alleys, streets, and yards.

MARKET REPORT.

Kansas City Stock Yards, May 19. —Declines in cattle prices first two days last week were largely regained later in the week. Heavy Monday runs in Chicago the last month have hurt the trade at nearly every point, and is again the main bear influence today. At Kansas City every week early losses have been pretty thoroughly repaired, but until the liquidation fever has run its course the market will do well to hold its own. Receipts here today are 10,000 head, market steady to 10 lower. Heifers are selling steady. A five car drove of Nebraska beefers brought $8.00 today, far to good heifers $7.25 to $7.75. Steers sold unevenly, some sales steady, others 10 lower. Prime animals would reach $8.50 or $8.60, and the bulk sells at $7.50 to $8.15. Country buyers were a good support to the market, one drove of fair fleshed 1,000 pound steers bringing $7.60 as feeders, on which the packers had stopped at $7.35. Cows are dull today, buyers affirming that cheap steers are plentiful and sell to butchers better than cows. Sugar mill steers brought $8.15 today, Southern steers $6.20 to $7.55. Stock cattle are scarce, possibly because owners of same consider them good property and keep them at home. This is supposed to be the dull season on thin cattle and feeders, yet the outgo from here last week was 5,00 head, against 4,000 same week last year. Prices largely at $7.25 to $7.75.

Hog supplies here today, 9,000 head market steady with a strong finish. Top was $8.47 1-2, a shade higher than any sale last week, bulk of sale $8.30 to $8.45. As soon as the run at Eastern markets lightens up, which will be in a few weeks, better prices will be paid in the West. Market authorities say that bacon hogs will sell 50 cents to a dollar above heavy lard hogs this summer, the spread beginning as soon as the June delegation of grass widows appears on the market.

Sheep and lambs sold steady today, the first sign of good health the mutton market has shown for some time. Texas mutton offerings are moderate, at $4.70 to $5.15, not many goats are included, browsers at $3.35 to $3.65, some Arizona spring lambs brought $8.40, Colorado woolled yearlings $8.25 and yet the total receipts pooted up only 9500 head, a moderate Monday supply.
